

TV Hearings Delay Rejected

Cox Requests 3-Month Wait

WASHINGTON (AP) — Special prosecutor Archibald Cox Monday asked the Senate Watergate committee to suspend its televised hearings. But a majority of the panel said no.

Four of the committee's seven senators immediately rejected the bid by Cox who warned that continuing the hearings, scheduled to resume Tuesday, will impede investigations of the scandal and increase the risk that guilty parties will go free.

A three months delay, Cox said, "seems reasonable but I would be grateful for any significant period."

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., said his committee cannot afford a delay because it is vital "for the people to learn the truth."

He was joined by Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., who called Cox presumptuous in making the request and added: "It seems to me that Mr. Cox would be well advised to carry out his responsibilities without advising the Senate how to carry out theirs."

Sen. Joseph S. Montoya, D-N.M. and Lowell and Weicker, R-Conn., also supported the rejection.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, said he is inclined to support Ervin.

Two Republicans, Sens. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Edward J. Gurney of Florida, said they will wait until the matter is discussed at an executive committee meeting at 9 a.m. Tuesday. The hearings, which recessed May 24, are scheduled to resume at 10 a.m.

"I do not accept the suggestion of the prosecution that the Senate investigation will impede the search for truth," said Ervin, a former North Carolina supreme court justice. "On the contrary, the preparation for the investigation on the part of the committee has greatly accelerated the revelation of the truth."

He said a postponement would "for all practical intentions and purposes put the committee out of business" and added, "We cannot afford the delay incident to awaiting further action by the Department of Justice."

Meanwhile, the White House said it will not furnish investigators with logs of conversations that President Nixon had about the Watergate scandal this year with ousted counsel John W. Dean III.

"The President's logs are not subject to subpoena," said deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren. Supplying the materials, he said, would be "constitutionally inappropriate."

Dean, fired as White House lawyer on April 30, was quoted in published reports as saying he discussed aspects of the Watergate coverup with the President or in Nixon's presence 30-40 times between January and April.

The Washington Post, quoting sources, said Dean plans to allege the President was deeply involved in the coverup.

The White House at first called the reports "part of a careful coordinated strategy... to prosecute a case against the President in the press using innuendo, distortion of fact and outright falsehood."

On Monday, Warren acknowledged the President had conferred with Dean and said the topics included Nixon's own Watergate investigation, administration policy on citing executive privilege and hearings on the unsuccessful nomination of L. Patrick Gray to be director of the FBI.

Asked about Warren's comments on not supplying logs of the conversations, Cox told newsmen he has been assured of access to all documents, files and other papers in the executive branch.

"I intend to have access to all papers," he said. "If there is any waffling on it, I plan to make the waffling plain."

When the Senate hearings recessed for a long Memorial Day recess on May 24, the committee had heard 11 witnesses, including two of the convicted conspirators in the break-in, James W. McCord Jr. and Bernard L. Barker.

Committee investigators Monday interviewed G. Gordon Liddy, another of the Watergate seven. He has refused to testify before the Watergate grand jury on grounds of self-incrimination, although he received immunity from prosecution for his testimony.

Senate sources said Liddy maintained his silence in a long appearance before the committee counsel.

Liddy and the other defendants except McCord have similar limited immunity for their Senate testimony.

Three witnesses have been scheduled to appear Tuesday.

Sally Harmony, former secretary to Liddy, who reportedly typed the "Gemstone" logs of wiretap conversations.

H. A. Post, owner of a Washington printing firm, who said the firm printed "Gemstone" stationery.

—Robert Reissner, an assistant to deputy campaign director Jeb S. Magruder, McCord reportedly told investigators that Reissner can support his story that the Watergate operation was approved by Magruder, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Dean.

Walk OK'd To Try To Fix Solar Panel

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab 1's astronauts will conduct a space walk "no earlier than Thursday" in an attempt to deploy a broken solar power panel and boost the electricity available to the crippled space station, officials said Monday.

The space walk salvage job go-ahead came after a daylong meeting of top space agency officials at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

A spokesman said that after careful study it was observed that "no unusual safety risks were found" in the space walk repair job and that "the potential gain outweighed the risks involved" in attempting the repair.

Detailed techniques on how to perform the job of snapping into place the jammed panel are ready for relay to Skylab astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin. A television conference to discuss the procedures with the crew is set for Tuesday.

Officials said the astronauts probably will practice the tricky job on Wednesday and perform the work "no earlier than Thursday."

The decision was reached, officials said, after Skylab back-up commander Russell Schweickart practiced the salvage job underwater in a tank at Marshall and found that it could be done. He reported his findings at the meeting Monday. The statement said that without use of the power wing or some other type of "power augmentation" the complete experiment schedule of Skylab 1 could not be performed and that "a 56-day mission would not be possible" for Skylab 2 and Skylab 3.

If the power panel can be successfully deployed it can almost double the available power on the electricity-starved Skylab.

Mission Control told the astronauts of the tentative plans and Conrad replied: "We aim to please. We're more than happy to do anything we can."

Officials said Conrad, a four-mission veteran who has spent more time in space than any other man, will make the final decision on which of the astronauts attempts the job and how it is done.

Monday on their 11th day of a scheduled 28-day mission, the astronauts performed earth resources studies and medical experiments from Skylab orbiting 270 miles over the earth.

Conrad and Weitz aimed powerful cameras at the earth in a photo pass over parts of Wyoming, South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia.

Data gathered over the United States will be used to map major geological features and to study cloud structures.

Agnew To Speak Tuesday. . .

Governors Spin Wheels In Watergate Discussion

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Stateline, Nev. — The nation's governors Monday spun their wheels in a three-hour discussion with four prominent journalists over the Watergate affair during the opening session of the National Governor's Conference.

Lawrence Spivak of "Meet the Press" told the governors,

"Watergates are going to happen when you have a great deal of power concentrated in one man."

A number of governors from both parties, however, wanted to get on with other matters and leave the matter of the Watergate to investigators.

Nevertheless, it appears almost certain that Watergate will be brought up again, since conference officials disclosed Monday that Vice President Spiro Agnew is scheduled to speak at Tuesday's session.

Illinois Gov. Dan Walker, a Democrat, told reporters that the conference should be concentrating more on problems of state government which the governors can do something about.

"Sure," Walker said. "I want it (the Watergate) to be investigated, but let's get on with the business of state government."

Resolutions concerning grain transportation, the energy situation, revenue-sharing and impoundment of funds are before the conference.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp concurred that the conference should be addressing itself more to state issues.

The reporters, who number close to 300, "seem to be more concerned about getting us to talk about Watergate than what we came here for," Shapp said.

Indeed, at an earlier press conference following a Republican governor's caucus Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton became irritated by numerous questions concerning the Republican governors' stance on Watergate.

He said Watergate had not been discussed during the early morning caucus and stood by earlier statements from the Republican governors deploring Watergate but standing firmly behind the President.

Holton said the possibility of impeachment and suggestions that Nixon is now ineffectual as a leader are "out of the question."

Exon Eyes Proposal For Limit On Taxes

Stateline, Nev. — Gov. J. James Exon Monday called a proposal being pushed here by California Gov. Ronald Reagan for a constitutional limit on state taxes "worthy of consideration" in Nebraska.

While declining to wholeheartedly endorse the idea for lack of familiarity, Exon remarked, "For far too long we have not been the master of our own destiny in spending matters."

"It's been popular to say yes to spending requests lately," Exon said, "but it is perhaps more courageous to say no."

To Study Idea
Exon said he will be studying the constitutional limit on taxes after it is completely outlined by Reagan.

Although no two states are alike, Reagan said Monday that if his tax limit becomes law it could set an example for other states.

"If it works here," Reagan said, "I think it could be applied nationally."

"We should find an optimum level of taxation where we can support needed government services without constituting a drag on peoples' incomes."

Legal Ceiling

Reagan's tax plan would write into the state constitution a limit on the total amount of state income tax revenue which can be collected. Rates would then be adjusted by the legislature to meet the tax ceiling.

The proposal failed to get passed by the California legislature, so Reagan is seeking an initiative to get the matter on the Nov. 6 ballot. Some 520,000 signatures are needed; Reagan reportedly has 350,000 certified signatures. The deadline for the signatures is mid-June.

Critics contend that the measure would place the state in an inflexible bind in light of possible emergencies and continuing inflation. They also maintain that the move is motivated by Reagan's desire to be the 1976 Republican presidential candidate.

Reagan said Monday he has still not made up his mind about the 1976 election.

Women Said Stereotyped In Lincoln School Books

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

A committee of the Lincoln chapter of the National Organization for Women says its study of primary textbooks in the Lincoln Public Schools revealed that "girls and women are consistently portrayed as passive."

"Boys, on the contrary, are aggressive, love sports and are generally confident of their problem-solving ability," said the NOW committee.

The study of sex-role stereotypes was undertaken by the NOW education task force last fall, said Betty Corea, who with Eva Sartori coordinated the study.

Early Grades
The women concentrated on books used often in grades kindergarten through third, and members of the task force read the books with an eye toward how males and females are perceived.

"We were motivated to undertake this study by the growing awareness in our society that women exhibit certain types of psychological characteristics and are channeled into certain types of occupations, usually the less prestigious and lucrative ones," an introduction to the 110-page study says.

"We were interested in finding out how the socialization process contributes to the psychological and vocational orientation of women."

Lists Supplied
The task force studied textbooks from lists supplied by public school consultants in reading, literature, social studies, health and mathematics. "Our conclusion is not surprising: girls and women are consistently portrayed as passive," the study's introduction says.

"Their activities most frequently involve some form of rehearsal for domesticity."

"Adult women," the study says, "do not transcend the confines of an infinitesimal range of occupations: mother, teacher, librarian, nurse."

"Males are anything from doctor to explorer."

"Stereotyping"
The study says many books "are guilty of what we call unconscious stereotyping," which "operates through constant association of women with domestic chores, of men with prestigious and exciting occupations, picturing girls with dolls and boys with baseball bats."

On the other hand, said the study, some materials were "overtly sexist," and the task force recommended elimination of those.

The study also says the school system itself has been "extremely cooperative and sensitive to our viewpoint."

After meeting Monday afternoon with Associate Supt. Ronald Brandt of the Lincoln schools, Ms. Corea said they will continue to work with the schools to try to help change attitudes.

Brandt said Monday that there are few textbooks available which do not portray females in the roles noted by the study.

Lincoln Man Dies In Crash

EMERALD, Neb. (AP)—A Lincoln man was killed in a two-car accident at an intersection here Monday.

He was identified as Michael G. Bales, 21.

His car and a car driven by Mrs. Joyce E. Sheets, 34, of Lincoln were in collision at the intersection of Highway 6 and the Denton Road.

Council 'Opens' Morning Session

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A divided City Council Monday agreed to open up to the press its previously closed 11 o'clock morning meetings and spelled out guidelines for city lawmakers to use when going "off-the-record."

The vote was 4 to 2.

Council members Sue Bailey, Helen Boosalis, Max Denney and John Robinson opened the door, while Dick Baker and Bob Sikyta tried to block that move. Councilman Steve Cook was absent.

In a surprise move, Denney introduced the matter at the conclusion of Monday's regular council meeting, saying that the morning session would be open to the press unless a special request is made to go off-the-record.

5 Votes Needed
According to the charter, Denney said, the council will have to approve such requests by a two-thirds vote. Thus, five votes will be needed.

Before the new council took the reins May 14, the previous council met at 11 a.m. Mondays behind closed doors in the council office. No representatives of the press were allowed in.

However, several weeks ago the new city lawmakers ruled that the discussion sessions would go public.

At the time that decision was made, Sikyta objected.

Stand Unchanged
And he still objected Monday, saying, "I would like the right to have executive sessions with the rest of the council."

Emphasizing that no votes are taken or decisions are reached at the late morning get-togethers, he said, "I think that anyone should be able to come before us where we could ask questions and receive answers for our own background information."

If representatives of the media attend those discussions, Sikyta contended that department heads or other city officials would not be as free to discuss the matter in question.

'Piece At A Time'
And if stories were published on such discussions, he contended that "the public would not get the entire story — but only a piece at a time." The meetings would be "so we can get more intelligent," he stated.

"I think the press and the public would like to give us that right."

Denney countered that opening the meetings to the press would not preclude council members from stating their opinions, obtaining information or going off-the-record on their comments.

Denney said he introduced the motion "to clear this up and give them and us a guideline to go by."

Background Only
However, Baker sided with Sikyta, saying, "I have no qualms about the press being there — but it should be for background purposes only."

"A case in point is our meeting last Tuesday," he explained, "where we discussed setting up a meeting with the Lincoln Foundation on the Little study."

At that morning session, the council discussed meeting with the foundation and county officials to change the make-up of the County-City Implementation Commission. That commission would oversee a number of task forces directed toward encouraging city-county merger.

Read It In Paper

"But," Baker stated, "before we got a chance to tell them about it (the decision), I read in the paper the next morning about the actions we took."

Baker said he thought that discussion was for background information only — not for publication.

Disagreeing, Mrs. Boosalis said, "Through the years the press has been most cooperative."

She contended that "public bodies should be out in the public light," and that discussion among city officials would be of interest to the people.

"It looks like I'm fighting a losing battle," Sikyta commented.

"I'm sure it will come out in the press that I'm a profiteering businessman that just wants to meet in secret."

Following the meeting, Sikyta told The Star, "You and I both know that there's going to be executive sessions — it just won't be at 11 anymore."

Democrat Lucey Says
Nixon Should Resign

STATELINE Nev. (AP) — Gov. Patrick Lucey of Wisconsin urged President Nixon on Monday to resign because of the Watergate scandal, but another governor said Nixon still is capable of leading the nation and should stay in the White House.

Lucey, a Democrat, said that because of Watergate Nixon can no longer lead the country effectively and should resign rather than force the country to go through the pains of impeachment.

"I think that for the good of the country the President ought to resign," Lucey told reporters at the 65th annual National Governors' Conference at this Lake Tahoe gambling resort.

The evidence including his own 4,800-word statement, is so conclusive not only that he had knowledge of the cover-up, but also participated in it, that he cannot be rehabilitated," Lucey said.

STATELINE Nev. (AP) — Republican governors unanimously endorsed Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington Monday as the next chairman of the National Governors' Conference.

The Republicans also decided at their closed breakfast meeting to hold their fall meeting in Memphis, Tenn., sometime between mid-November and mid-December.

In a news conference a few minutes earlier, Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton, chairman of the Republican Governors' Association, said Nixon is still capable of leading the nation and should stay in office.

Holton called a proposal by former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford that both Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resign "absurd on its face."

Lucey said he would like to see Agnew stay on as head of a caretaker government with a bipartisan cabinet.

Conference chairman Marvin Mandel of Maryland announced later that Agnew, formerly the Nixon administration's liaison with the governors, would be coming to the conference on Tuesday.

Lucey said Nixon's political leadership had been undermined by scandal, and he said the current international gold crisis reflects "lack of confidence in his ability to run the domestic economy of this country."

Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, a Republican, called Lucey's proposal "the hair-trigger reaction of one of the most partisan governors we have in the conference." However, McCall conceded, Nixon's ability to govern "has been jeopardized."

Lucey said he was reserving judgment on whether to call for impeachment if Nixon does not resign, but he left the option open.

"The trouble with impeachment," Lucey said, "is that the cure may be worse than the disease because of the long, drawn-out procedure."

"I don't think Nixon should force the country to that alternative," he said. "We ought not to be put through the traumatic experience of impeachment."

Holton, who had called Sunday for Nixon to be "cross-examined" by the press in a series of news conferences, said he still had confidence in Nixon's ability to direct the government for the rest of his term.

Construction Industry
Controls To Be Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nixon administration spokesman said Monday that controls over the construction industry eventually will be lifted and the industry should take steps now to avoid the "mess" that existed in the pre-control period.

Chairman John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council did not indicate a timetable for lifting the controls that have prevailed since 1971. But he said they will not last indefinitely and both contractors and unions should be planning ahead.

"I'd hate to think there would be a return to the mess that developed between 1966 and 1971 in this industry," Dunlop told the Council of Construction Employers.

He said that in the year before controls there was about one strike for every three labor contracts that expired and were renegotiated, which he termed a lousy performance.

The current rate he said, is one strike for every 30 contract renegotiations.

In the year before controls, labor contracts provided an average increase of 17 per cent in wages and benefits. He said this declined to 10 to 11 per cent in the first year after controls, and to 5 1/2 to 6 per cent, including fringe benefits, in the past year.

"I see no reason to expect a different result for the balance of this year," he added. Dunlop said there should be advance planning by the industry to make sure that workers are available to fill an increase in demand for specific jobs, such as in the building of new oil refineries.

He said there would be an appropriate role for the government to plan both in manpower planning and in preparing the industry for the post-control period.

The construction industry, one of the country's largest in terms of both invested capital and employment, has remained under compulsory wage and price controls since March of 1971, when it was placed under the supervision of the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee.

Dollar Hits New Low

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar plunged to new lows Monday in Europe's jittery money markets and gold soared to more record highs.

Dealers cited new reports of President Nixon's talks with John Dean III about Watergate as one of the main factors in the dollar's decline, along with concern over U.S. inflation and trading positions.

In London, gold closed at $124 an ounce, an all-time high and up seven dollars from last Friday's closing figure.

As gold rose, the dollar plummeted. In London, it opened at $2.5810 to the pound sterling lowest level in a year, and ended the day at $2.5830 to the pound.

One result of the dollar's decline is that this summer's European vacations will cost Americans more.

Last year, for example, an American could buy a British pound for around $2.40. On Monday the pound was $2.55. A few years ago one West German mark was worth 25 cents. On Monday it was 38 cents.

Treasury Endorses Interest
On U.S. Income Tax Refunds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration asked Congress Monday to do away with the interest-rate ceiling on U.S. savings bonds and to allow taxpayers the chance to draw interest on federal income tax refunds.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz advanced the proposals before the House Ways and Means Committee, saying they would encourage savings and perhaps guard against inflationary spending.

He also proposed elimination of the present 4.25 per cent ceiling on interest the Treasury can pay on bonds it issues. Two years ago, the Treasury received an exemption to issue $10 billion worth of bonds without regard to the ceiling.

Shultz said he had no new interest rate in mind for U.S. savings bonds, which now pay 5 1/2 per cent a year. But eliminating the ceiling would make it easier to change the rate in the future if it becomes necessary to do so in order to offer a fair return to savers, he said.

Proposals to permit payment of interest on federal income tax refund checks have been kicking around in Congress for some time, but until Monday the Treasury has failed to endorse the idea.

Shultz said the taxpayer would have the option of deciding whether to invest his refund check. It would be done by holding it for a specified time, he said.

But the secretary gave no hint of the interest rate that the government might pay, nor how long a taxpayer would have to hold his check before it began drawing interest.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns first advanced the idea of a Treasury bond to allow taxpayers to invest their refund checks. Burns said the large refund checks being paid out now could lead to high consumer spending and touch off inflationary pressures.

He said the increase would carry the government through fiscal 1974, ending June 30, 1974 without going over the mark set by Congress.

Shultz also dropped a hint that the ceiling should be removed. The debt ceiling isn't very helpful in restraining spending because "it is much like locking the barn door after the horse has gone," he said.

Survey Finds Coffee Is Costing You More

By The Associated Press
That second cup of coffee in the morning is costing you more these days, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey.

Eggs, hot dogs and hamburgers also are higher in price than they were three months ago.

And a farm state governor predicts there may be a "meat crisis" within the next two or three months because of shortages created by boycotts, price ceilings and bad weather.

That's the bad news for the American consumer. And there isn't much good news.

An AP survey of the prices of 15 food and nonfood items in 13 cities over the past three months showed 35.4 per cent of the products went up in cost from March 1 to June 1. Another 41.5 per cent remained the same; 20.5 per cent decreased; and 2.6 per cent were unavailable on one of the survey dates.

The total marketbasket bill was up in 10 of the cities surveyed, with increases ranging from a fraction of a cent in Providence, R.I., to almost seven per cent in Chicago.

Coffee and eggs led the list of more costly items. Coffee was up in 11 cities checked; stayed the same in one; and was unavailable in one. Most of the increases came between May 1 and June 1 and averaged about 7 or 8 per cent.

Eggs went up in 10 cities; down in two; and were unavailable in one. Increases from March 1 to June 1 ranged from 2 to 20 per cent.

The higher prices at the checkout counter mirrored earlier boosts in the wholesale market.

Experts in London, headquarters of the International Coffee Organization, said world coffee prices have been rising because of crop failures in Brazil due to droughts and leaf rust disease; artificially high prices set by Brazil and Colombia for their exports; and withholding of supplies by growers of the robusta variety of coffee, produced mainly in Africa.

Wholesale prices for eggs during the first quarter of the year rose sharply. The Agriculture Department reported that egg prices decreased during the month ended May 15, but there was no sign that the savings had been passed on to the consumer.

All-beef frankfurters rose in 10 cities from March 1 to June 1 and chopped chuck went up in seven cities. Almost all the increases came in the first two months, however, and prices leveled off after May 1, despite higher wholesale prices and short supplies of livestock at market.

The Agriculture Department said last week that livestock supplies in April were down 12 per cent from the previous year, mainly because of the April 1-7 consumer boycott that caused meat packers to hold back on buying and induced farmers to withhold their animals from market.

Gov. Robert D. Ray of Iowa says that the nation may face a "meat crisis" in 60 to 90 days because of the short supplies.

He noted that price ceilings imposed by President Nixon at the end of March prevent meat producers from raising their prices above a certain level — even if feed prices go up.

The careful shopper still could find a few bargains. Butter and pork chops declined in more than half the cities checked.

The cities surveyed were: Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City, and Seattle.

Court Rules On Fees In Integration Cases

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that school boards and other official agencies which lose school desegregation cases must in most circumstances pay the court costs of lawyers representing black parents and children.

In an unsigned opinion in a Memphis, Tenn., case, the justices said, "The plaintiffs in school cases are private attorneys general vindicating national policy."

The ruling applies only to lawsuits begun after last July 1.

The opinion was based on an earlier decision which provided

Moon Robot's Work Is Done

Moscow (UPI) — The Lunokhod 2 moon robot has concluded its experiments after 4½ months on the lunar Sea of Serenity, Tass said Monday. The eight-wheeled robot covered 23 miles, 3½ times the distance logged by its predecessor during 10 months in 1970 and 1971.

similar payments for lawyers involved in racial discrimination cases against hotels and restaurants under federal civil rights law.

The NAACP Legal Defense Fund (LDF) argued that school boards opposing integration can finance their lawsuits with tax money, including some paid by black parents. LDF lawyers said the high court's ruling may discourage frivolous defenses by local authorities.

Under a 1972 law which said trial courts could allow reasonable fees in school cases, the payments have been generally left to a judge's discretion. Because of the Monday action, a judge is required to award fees to the winning attorneys "unless special circumstances would render such an award unjust."

'Big' Minh Urges Release Of All Political Prisoners

SAIGON (AP) — A former South Vietnamese president proposed on Monday scrapping all laws that are oppressive to non-Communist opponents to the Saigon government. He also called for the immediate release of all political prisoners.

Duong Van "Big" Minh, a middle-roader who was one of the leaders of the coup that ended in the killing of President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963, said that the people of South Vietnam are setting their hopes on secret talks between Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris this week.

But, he said, a realistic peace depends on the good will of the opposing parties in South Vietnam — the Viet Cong and the Saigon government of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Alluding again to the Kissinger-Tho talks, Minh said the people of South Vietnam "cannot help feeling deeply pained that, once more, the internal problems of South Vietnam have not been settled by Vietnamese among Vietnamese."

Minh's statement on political prisoners drew a denial from a Saigon government official that there are any political prisoners, but at the same time the official acknowledged that individual liberties have been restricted.

Minh was particularly critical of a May 12 law which he said "lays down the detailed measures for sending to concentration camps, assigning forced residence or banishing the elements considered dangerous to national defense, national security and public order."

The government official accused Minh of being a pawn of the An Quang Buddhist faction and said "he is being used by those people that are around him to take advantage of him to get a part in this third force."

U.S. Embassy Denies Making Lebanon Intervention Threat

Beirut (UPI) — The U.S. Embassy denied reports Monday in a pro-Palestinian newspaper that the United States has threatened to intervene in Lebanon if new clashes break out between the army and Arab guerrillas.

The Beirut daily Al Moharrer cited unidentified Lebanese "official sources" as saying the United States issued the warning in the form of an "ultimatum" last week in an unidentified Arab capital.

Officials in that capital "informed Lebanese higher quarters" about it, Al Moharrer said.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Boulos Malek described the Al Moharrer report as false.

"The United States did not deliver an ultimatum either to Lebanon or through any other Arab state," he said. "This story has no basis in truth."

Al Moharrer said the U.S. threatened "to intervene directly" if the army-guerrilla clashes resumed in Lebanon "and if some specific Arab quarters supported the guerrillas in a way that endangered the Lebanese situation."

The newspaper said the alleged American move was the reason Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad came to Beirut last week to help smooth relations between Lebanese authorities and the guerrillas.

In July 1968, the United States landed 10,000 Marines in Lebanon at the request of then-President Camil Le Chamoun to help restore order during an uprising that threatened to erupt into civil war. The Marines remained in the Beirut area and never became involved in the clashes, withdrawing in October 1968 at the request of Chamoun's successor as president, the late Fuad Chehab.

Mediterranean Pollution Considered

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — More than 300 delegates from cities around the Mediterranean Sea met here Monday in an effort to prevent the ancient cradle of civilization from turning into a pool of filth.

The three-day World Inter-communal Conference for the Protection of the Mediterranean drew representatives from 14 nations in the Mediterranean basin. It ends Wednesday with the signing of a charter to set down principles aimed at halting the sea's deterioration from dumped wastes.

The conference is sponsored by the French-based United Nations organization and various U.N. agencies. Among those taking part are mayors, city councilmen, representatives of citizens' associations, urban planners, scientists, technicians and research workers from around the Mediterranean.

Arab countries such as Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and the Union of Arab Emirates also have sent delegates because they expect to face similar pollution problems in the Persian Gulf, particularly because of the large number of oil tankers that ply the area.

"This congress is absolutely essential," said Dr. George Tohme, a biology professor at the Arab University of Beirut.

Shultz Would Invest

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Reported in the U.S. press as propaganda was a story in the Russian press about the U.S. Communist Party's welcome to Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev. The U.S. party supposedly told the Soviet people that Brezhnev would be cordially welcomed to this country.

Now, that may be propaganda but it may also be the truth. Political ideology aside, this nation and its people have a natural tendency to make their guests feel at home. Additionally, we are a people proud of the country we have made and take delight in showing it off.

In this we are not really any different from the people of all the nations of the world. Every nation is proud of its achievements and welcomes an opportunity to tell the world about its accomplishments, its hopes and dreams.

The fact that Brezhnev, who will be coming here to visit President Nixon later this month, represents a political system in conflict with our own ideas will not materially change this situation. We may not agree with the things that Brezhnev stands for but we would still prefer that this not make our two countries enemies.

We would prefer to get along with the Soviet Union, even though we do not like the closed society it has imposed upon its people. Also, we would like to think, naively no doubt, that the Russians might realize through personal knowledge the assets of a democratic way of life.

The latter is not totally out of the question, actually, but does involve a long and most indefinite timetable. The Soviet Union may evolve in its politics to something more open but it will take a long time and our example will not encourage it so much as will its own experience.

What we hope to accomplish with the Russian party boss in this nation is not to send him home a confirmed advocate of a republic, but rather, to make progress with him toward a better accommodation of opposing forces and interests. In this regard, he will be welcome and it is hoped that he enjoys his visit here as well as attending to business with the President.

There is nothing wrong with giving him a welcome and nothing wrong with a desire that his visit here go well. This is not a capitulation to a foreign political system but simply an effort to make the best of things.

The Soviet leader will be seeking, above all else, some kind of military standoff in Western Europe and improved trade relations with this nation. It is the latter which is especially pushing the Soviet leadership at this time.

This leadership has long pushed for an improved domestic economic or consumer situation and more world trade is part of what it needs to achieve this. It needs raw materials, finished goods and expertise from this country and needs them sufficiently well to open some of its previously closed doors.

It is believed that the area of trade will produce more difficulties than military affairs and that alone represents some kind of progress in the world. Possibly we have arrived at the point between the U.S. and Russia where economic affairs have a priority over military affairs.

Neither the U.S. nor Russia is about to go so far as to leave itself vulnerable to military action by the other but both are confident enough of their own strength to direct their efforts toward other things. This is the atmosphere that exists as the time approaches for Brezhnev's visit with President Nixon.

No agreements between these two world leaders will be made overnight but their meeting may set the groundwork for future arrangements of benefit to both nations. Certainly, it is better to be talking together than fighting one another.

Impeachment Easy Topic Among Conversationalists

WASHINGTON — Who would have thought only a few weeks ago that scholarly tome written at Harvard and priced at $14.95 would soon receive prominent display in Washington bookstore windows. The title "Impeachment" — explains the book's unexpected popularity and a rising train of thought in the nation's capital.

Impeachment has edged from the realm of the publicly unutterable into the arena of "let's suppose" discussion. "Let's suppose," one's dinner partner is likely to say, "that charges were brought against the President."

The once taboo word crops up more frequently in Congress, though in a tentative, cautious context. And the Library of Congress has had dozens of requests from lawmakers for information about impeachment proceedings since the Watergate scandal started making headlines across the country.

Raoul Berger, author of the new book, "Impeachment," focuses on an ancestry dating from 14th Century England. Impeachment originally was the device of a fledgling Parliament to make the Crown's ministers accountable. The Founding Fathers, when they met that summer of 1787 in Philadelphia, decided to retain the device as it had evolved over the centuries.

In Article II they said "The President shall be removed from office upon impeachment for and conviction of treason, bribery, and other high crimes and misdemeanors." In Article I they vested the sole power of impeachment in the House of Representatives by majority vote and gave the Senate the two-thirds majority "sole power to try all impeachments." Moreover, "judgment in cases of impeachment" does not "extend further than in removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States."

"So much is clear," writes Leonard Orland, a University of Connecticut law professor, in reciting the foregoing passages. He adds that a lot of things are left less than perfectly clear by the journals of the constitutional debates of the Federalist Papers.

So much has been left unclear that when Rep. Gerald R. Ford proposed the impeachment of Justice William O. Douglas in April, 1970, he could assert that an "impeachable offense" was whatever Congress "considers it to be." Treason or bribery may be defined with a fair degree of accuracy, but what about "high crimes and misdemeanors"?

One reason for present-day lack of clarity about such matters is that presidential impeachment has been tested only once — in 1868 when Andrew Johnson was tried by the Senate and won acquittal by a single vote. The proceedings against him, and the bitter divisions they created, left the nation feeling that impeachment must never be used except as a last resort.

But now a new school of historical thinking has challenged the old belief in Johnson's innocence and his enemies' guilt. Whatever is decided about impeachment in the year 1968 or 1973, it is clear that impeachment no longer belongs exclusively in the domain of constitutional scholars or antiquarians.

'Who Says You Can't Get To City Hall From Here?'

Pete Jumps The Gun

Maverick Republican Pete McCloskey, the California congressman who challenged President Nixon in some primaries last year and who has agonized considerably in recent years over his political identity, has brought the impeachment issue a step beyond the whispering stage.

McCloskey has reserved one hour Wednesday for a "full discussion" by the House of Representatives of "serious questions" raised by President Nixon's statement regarding the Watergate case. His is not a request for formal impeachment action, but it does open it up for debate on the floor of the House.

It's McCloskey's contention that the President obstructed justice by admittedly ordering certain activities and documents kept secret out of concern for national security and that the only way to bring the President to justice in the matter is by impeachment proceedings.

McCloskey may be a headline grabber. He may also have a point. But he is putting the cart before the horse. No one else, thus far, has seen fit to broach the subject of impeachment seriously while the Senate hearings and the independent investigation which may lead to further criminal charges are still underway and are thus far inconclusive as to the President's complicity.

A sensational but premature airing of arguments for impeachment might not only damage the search for the whole truth that is now underway but could be profoundly unfair to Nixon as well.

Congress needn't be in any hurry—it shouldn't be — to debate the President's possible complicity. It will know whether or not he is clear or should stand accused when the full tale is unraveled.

The people should know the whole story, too, as Sen. Ervin argues. And the best way to reveal it to them is through the hearings being held by his committee. The Justice Department has had a year to bring additional indictments in the case, Ervin noted in rejecting a postponement of the hearings, and he believes and we agree that it's time the people got to the bottom of it. At least it's time that it started. Postponements, like precipitous actions, should be out.

Butz Not So Reassuring

Sec. of Agriculture Earl Butz assured an audience in Des Moines last week that the government would work to assure an adequate farm fuel supply.

Butz reportedly was already aware at the time of a report prepared for Sen. Carl Curtis that showed that several north-central Nebraska counties had exhausted tractor fuel supplies, that irrigation units in the area are unable to operate and thus some 24,000 acres of corn will not be grown and that bootleg diesel fuel going for twice the normal price is being sold in Nebraska.

The situation is not peculiar to north-central Nebraska alone, of course, and that is something the federal government should know if it doesn't.

We believe that Sen. Curtis was right in his weekend statement when he said he believed that the voluntary fuel conservation programs won't work. It will take mandatory controls to cope with the fuel shortage, Curtis said.

The Senate will consider a bill this week to authorize the President to allocate oil and gas supplies. If there is a question about the President's authority to act in the fuel crisis, it should be resolved in short order.

Because the problem won't go away with reassuring statements from government officials, fuel conservation tips and suggestions to oil suppliers about voluntary allocations of fuel.

Caring About Children

NEW YORK — In 1846, the state of Massachusetts opened the Lyman School, the first of what proved to be a long line of American "juvenile institutions," "reform schools," "industrial schools," and the like. In 1972, Massachusetts became the first state in the nation to close all such prisons for young people — including the Lyman School, then still in operation.

Thus, the Department of Youth Services set an example for the Massachusetts Department of Corrections, which has been moving rapidly toward the closing or limited use of adult prisons. Both departments were moved by essentially the same considerations. Their prisons were too old, understaffed and underbudgeted to prevent periodic scandals, much less to provide humane conditions for the inmates; and in such human warehouses, the problems of crime and delinquency that they were supposed to "correct" actually were made worse.

When Jerry Miller, a social work teacher without corrections experience, took over the youth services program in 1969, his first effort was toward "reform" — improving the existing institutional program by such means as weekend leaves, the abolition of physical punishment, the elimination of one institution's "Cottage Nine," where no speaking was permitted, and reducing the length of institutional terms. None of this dealt adequately with a major problem — the difficulty of an inmate's "re-entry to the community" after being taken out of it and imprisoned. Moreover, the state was spending $11 to $12 thousand a year per youth or girl, for little more than inadequate custodial care.

More and more emphasis was put on smaller units — group homes, for instance — in an effort to keep young offenders closer to the community, rather than removing them entirely from it. When the state institutions were closed in a crash program early in 1972, this is approximately what resulted:

Group home assignment was broadened from about 150 boys and girls to more than 800; foster home programs were expanded from the care of 150 to about 300; about 1,100 other youthful offenders were left in their own homes but to attend special schools, therapeutic sessions, job training programs, or in some other specified relationship to various social service agencies.

It is too early to hard data on the results, but they could hardly be worse than what Massachusetts used to get from its juvenile institutions — a recidivism rate that in every study ran consistently between 69 and 77%. Joe Levy, who has succeeded Miller (now in charge of juvenile corrections in Illinois), and his assistant commissioner, William Madaus, are confident the new program will do better and they cite several hopeful indicators. For example:

A study funded by the federal Law-Enforcement Assistance Administration showed no higher recidivism among a group of young offenders left in their own homes with no restraint or guidance of any kind than among youngsters sent away to the now-closed institutions.

A hundred youths were sent to the University of Massachusetts at the time the state institutions were closed; each was matched with a college student for guidance. Only 27% of these later committed an offense serious enough to warrant commitment to the Youth Services Department; another 20 committed less serious offenses — a total of 47% compared to the 69 to 77% recidivism rate among "graduates" of the old institutions.

In the new group and foster homes program, newly committed young offenders who were never in the old juvenile institutions appear to respond better (for instance, they run away less often) than young offenders transferred from the old institutions.

A good example — though

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is purpura? I have had this for almost two years. My doctor didn't know what it was, and the skin doctor doesn't seem able to cure it. Is there anything that can be done for it? If so, what kind of a doctor must I go to? — Mrs. A.C.G.

Purpura is excessive bleeding under the skin, resulting in red or purple splotches. I dare say your doctor knew what it was but didn't know what caused it. That's understandable, because it can be caused by quite a variety of conditions, and treatment, of course, depends on the cause.

In a sense, purpura is something like a bruise — a bruise represents bleeding under the skin. The difference is that purpura, unlike a bruise, isn't a sign of blood vessels broken because of a bump or blow. Rather, it is the inability to heal, promptly, small broken places in blood vessels.

A natural fragility of small blood vessels can be the cause. Years ago purpura used to occur in some infants and often was fatal. Today treatment with Vitamin K usually brings quick recovery. In short, the condition is usually a lack of clotting ability in the blood, most commonly a deficiency of the particles called platelets which are essential in forming clots and hence in stopping bleeding promptly.

Vitamins C and K, and quite possibly calcium can be helpful in controlling the condition — but it is still important to find the underlying cause.

Such causes can include poisoning (by cleaning solutions among others), drug sensitivity, and a variety of infections, such as some kidney or liver diseases, meningitis, scarlet fever and others. Allergies and certain kinds of anemia also can be at fault.

If such an underlying cause can be identified and treated effectively, the purpura disappears.

But when, after two years, there is no progress, it is time to see someone who specializes in blood disorders. A platelet count and other blood examination would be an essential part of the study.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How does a person get night blindness? Is it hereditary? Can it get serious? The person who has it said he has had glasses for about four years but never wore them. Now he has been wearing them about a year. He's 17. — S.S.

Not as simple a question as you may suppose, because there are various causes of night blindness which are quite dissimilar.

Sheer fatigue is one cause of less acute vision in low light. Sometimes the problem is psychological, involving fear of the dark. Diet deficiency is another, particularly if there is lack of vitamin A.

In younger folks, night blindness may be the first symptom of a disorder called retinitis pigmentosa, which can be serious. So when there are indications of developing night blindness, examination of the inner eye should be done by a specialist.

Retinitis pigmentosa is a hereditary condition, so if others in the family have that condition, or have indications of night blindness, it is reason to be especially suspicious.

The fact that the young man has had glasses for several years but didn't wear them may have nothing at all to do with his night blindness.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please explain what apoplexy is? — Mrs. E.R.C.

Apoplexy is an older term, now being used less and less, for a stroke, or "C.V.A." C.V.A. means cerebral vascular accident — that is, something that goes wrong with one of the blood vessels in the brain.

This can either be a hemorrhage, one of the vessels leaking blood; or a clot, shutting off blood flow through one of the many vessels.

The seriousness depends on the location and degree of damage.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What makes lips peel and burn almost constantly? It seems worse in winter. I was wondering if it was a vitamin deficiency. — Mrs. R.R.R.

It could be, and you might try a mixed Vitamin B preparation. There are lip balms which are colorless and afford some protection from the cold. Be sure, too, that you aren't licking your lips, which can keep the trouble going instead of easing it.

Note to Mrs. L.B.: No, you don't become "addicted" to streptomycin used to treat your tuberculosis.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Copyright 1973 Field Enterprises, Inc.

'Sierra Madre Treasure'

WASHINGTON — A desert stash of old Mexican gold ingots worth tens of millions has been reported to skeptical authorities who fear it may be a hoax.

The king's ransom in ancient bullion and Aztec-era artifacts was described by lawyer F. Lee Bailey by a mysterious middleman three months ago. He told Bailey the gold had been carted north perhaps hundreds of years ago and hidden in a cave on what is now the White Sands proving grounds in New Mexico.

Now the gold has been rediscovered, claimed the middleman. He was authorized by a consortium, he said, to try through Bailey to gain legal possession to the treasure.

The middleman, a business executive, said the consortium would deliver the gold to the government. The consortium promised to pay taxes on the tons of gold, which might come to 50% of its value, and sell the rest for their own profit.

If this "treasure of the Sierra

Madre" turned out to be stolen and the rightful owners established a valid claim, then the consortium would agree to give up the entire trove.

Skeptical, Bailey flew secretly in his Lear Jet to El Paso, Tex., supposedly near where the cache is located. But once he met with his new clients, they thwarted his efforts to visit the treasure cave.

They feared Bailey's entry to the White Sands government reservation might be an illegal act which, because he was their lawyer, would jeopardize the case.

Bailey took his story to Tod Hulin, a White House aide, who wanted some proof of the tale. Obligingly, Bailey's clients sent him a gleaming gold-colored bar 3 1/2 inches long, and promised him hundreds more to prove to the government their offer was no hoax. With this in hand, Bailey was referred to the Treasury Department.

Treasury experts assayed the bar at 60% pure, much less than is possible with modern refining. But some ancient ingots had this low gold content. The bar, at least, was no hoax.

But the talks have bogged down. Treasury officials reasoned that if there were gold on White Sands, then it already belonged to the government. Under present international agreements, the gold could not be used in world trade or sold by the Treasury for hard cash.

As one official told us, "there was all this secrecy and tedium about the deal. Besides, it's an unbelievable story." On May 17, the Treasury Department returned the ingot and told Bailey in a brusque private letter that "the Treasury has no interest in proceeding further with this matter."

Bailey has had no more success with the Army, which controls entry to White Sands. Army installations Deputy George Brazier told us that missile research is going on which "cannot be interrupted everytime somebody comes to us with a gold gleam in his eye." Numerous similar stories are brought to the Army and so far no one has produced gold, he said.

Bailey, meanwhile, argues that the government has nothing to lose by making a deal. And, he points out, the only way to find out whether the gold treasure is a hoax is for someone to snip through the red tape.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is hiring new hands to glorify Secretary

Caspar Weinberger even as he slices deeply into the services for the poor and sick. In recent months, HEW has hired Scott Peters, a former public affairs man from the Committee to Re-elect the President, plus other publicity consultants at $138, $120 and $100 a day. Their hirings came even as Weinberger fired or transferred several public affairs officers who were not certified Republicans.

We recently described how the Agriculture Department is trying to chop down 11.8 billion board feet of our national forests without taking proper fire precautions. Now, we can report from Interior Department documents that millions of board feet will also be slashed from forests under its control. Not surprisingly Interior would like to increase cutting on Indian lands by 105 million board feet a year.

One internal document points out the Indians' timber should not be cut without "intensifying fire protection capabilities." While the various tribes own the timber land, negotiations are generally handled by the Bureau of Indian Affairs which usually favors the timber barons over the Indians.

The Navy tried to transfer two highly-trained petty officers out of the country in the middle of their federal suit against the Navy. The petty officers, Nicholas Larionoff and Paul Boudreau, sued the Navy, claiming they were bilked of promised re-enlistment bonuses totaling between $2,800 and $3,400. The Navy contested the case but, meanwhile, ordered Larionoff to Iceland and Boudreau to Puerto Rico where their suit would be difficult to press. After our query to the Navy, both transfers were postponed.

The telephone of Defense Department employees are subject to eavesdropping at any time. The civilian and military employees can only grit their teeth and swear. They must accept the snooping as a condition of employment. But recently, Brig. Gen. F. H. Cutrona, the Pentagon information director, announced in a memo that 42 of the thousands of Pentagon phones would be "exempt" from surveillance. These are the phones of reporters in the Department of Defense press room.

Now that reporters have been assured their phones are tap-free, they expect a flood of officers asking to use them to make personal calls.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Older Person's Help Important Success Ingredient

By ROBERT PETERSON

What are the ingredients of business success? Well, there's the ancient list that includes education, ambition, persistence and hard work. But is there something else?

"Yes, you need someone older to help you," says Jack Yogan, president of Joseph E. Seagrams & Sons, Inc. Barely 50 himself, this quiet-spoken executive with tanned face and black wavy hair has made it to the top of the largest distiller in the United States. But he is quick to credit others.

"There's no such thing as a self-made executive," he said. "Just about everyone who has succeeded has had one or more older persons lending a hand."

How did it work in his case?

"After college, I was an ensign in the Navy and met a senior officer on leave from a job in private industry. He took a fatherly interest and gave me encouragement. After the war, I drifted around a bit and then looked up my Navy friend who gave me some valuable counsel. He clued me in on some of the social graces I lacked, introduced me to some prominent people and stimulated my self-confidence. This resulted in my joining a management consulting firm where I stayed 11 years and soaked up valuable experience. Then I met Samuel Bronfman, head of Distillers Corp.-Seagrams Ltd. who took an interest and encouraged my progress in his firm."

"Younger people are almost always dependent for their progress on doors opened for them by those who are older," continued Yogan, "and this fact deserves wider recognition. Too many young people feel they know it all. 'I don't need some oldtimer's advice,' they may say. What they don't realize is that older people have been down the road, know what to expect and can more often than not steer them around obstacles and in the right direction."

What about those in minority groups who may be seeking executive careers? "Their opportunities have never been brighter," said Yogan. "Every major company is actively seeking more minority personnel — not merely to remedy racial imbalances in their organizations but to tap new insights and new levels of talent. If young folks in these groups acquire basic education and then bring their qualifications to the attention of business firms, they've got better chances than ever before of cashing in on the so-called American dream."

Are degrees in business administration essential for executive trainees? "No, we don't feel business is something you can learn in school — you've got to learn it on the job. We once vied with other firms in hiring grads with BS and MBA degrees in business. But we found many of these young folks had a know-it-all attitude, or preconceived notions on how business operates.

"We don't feel that what a student has majored in at college means a great deal. What's important is that young people have a good general education, combined with basic intelligence, flexibility of attitude and willingness to learn."

"Incidentally, we like to get young people after they've had two or three jobs. Those shake-down experiences usually leave them a bit more realistic about what they have to offer. After some preliminary jobs they're generally ready to settle down and take seriously the work of learning everything they can about the business and the job to which they're assigned."

Hong Kong — Summer weather at Frangrant Harbor alongside the blue South China Sea. The divorce rate is up in Hong Kong. One divorce for every 95 marriages. (California score: One marriage, one divorce.)

This seems a high rate to the Chinese who don't pop off to a judge every time somebody criticizes the steamed buns.

I only knew one divorced Chinese. Mimi Lau, a Hong Kong newspaper reporter. She divorced her husband when she found he was hanging onto an old concubine. (A concubine — with radio, heater and white sidewalls — was about $500 U.S. in those florid days. A man could afford two chickens in every garage.)

"But first," said Mimi. "I give him a going away present. I buy him new concubine."

She presented the husband with the new doll (There's a ritual to everything.)

Mimi said: "I give her new name: Miss Kindly Perfume. Suey Fong."

She said: "That way show I don't care. That way I don't lose face."

"Also, said Mimi, "it make old concubine very mad."

They fly Sydney rock oysters into Hong Kong. I had a dozen the other day at Jimmy's Kitchen just off bustline Queen's Road.

We eat well in Hong Kong. The rooftop restaurant of Lee Gardens Hotel is one of the best Chinese in town.

They serve a hot sauce that goes well with shrimp and rice. It's thinly sliced hot red peppers — the chilis are the size of your little finger. Peanut oil and soy sauce.

I asked the girl press agent to get me the recipe. But she came back and said the chef would rather join his ancestors than reveal his secret.

Not that secret. I had it at another place. But all I found out was you cook the peanut oil first. Use Chinese, not Japanese soy sauce — Chinese is milder. Not as saucy.

I'd guess the oil was a quarter of a cup. The soy sauce the same. One sliced pepper. You could experiment.

The hong la tu came at a dinner in my honor. A 10-course dinner. With such a dinner you must eat a little of everything.

Otherwise your host loses face. Never mind about your stomach. Face is more important than stomach.

Mimi Lau used to stuff down Nutri-Bio pills. She got a bunch of them when she interviewed Bob Cummings, a pill popper of world reputation.

Mimi gave the pills plenty of publicity — "Gives me big face."

She put them on the table for everybody to see. Then she chopsticked them into her mouth. First time I ever saw anybody drop pills with chopsticks.

A few years ago I saw a divorce trial. The Hong Kong magistrate ruled that Mr. Wat-Kam-sang should pay support to Madame Chan Kam, his wife for the past 26 years.

It was a big surprise to Wat-Kam-sang. He didn't even know he was married.

It seems Wat-Kam-sang left home for New York at age 17. While he was away, his sister had him married in proxy to Madame Chan Kam. The proxy at the wedding was a rooster. (Nobody got the rooster's name. If I'd come back without that, the city editor would have killed me.)

Anyway, Wat-Kam-sang came home. "A perfectly legal marriage," said the magistrate at the trial.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Tuesday

The late Max Baer, who was heavyweight champion of the world, displayed many of the qualities of his zodiacal sign, which was Aquarius. If anyone was gregarious, it was Baer. He was called the "clown prince" of the ring and the big guy was friendly, generous and had a sharp, Uranian Aquarian sense of humor. In his dressing room, before his fight with Joe Louis, he was asked by George Jessel, "How do you feel, Max?" Smiling, Baer replied, "Fine, George, only I wish I was fighting you!" Before his death in 1959, Baer spent some time with me discussing boxing and astrology. While fighting, during his heyday, he revealed to me that anonymous Clem McCarthy, known for his fast, staccato delivery, was describing one of his bouts. Suddenly, Baer leaned over the ring ropes and shouted, "Not so fast, Clem! You're three punches ahead of me. Baer was born Feb. 11, 1909.

State Patrol Job Sought By Grand Island Widow

HASTINGS, Neb. (AP)—A Grand Island widow who says she's not a women's libber is the third woman to seek job as a State Patrol trooper in Nebraska.

Marjorie E. Brown, 21, who said she was interested in the job because of the money, applied with the Patrol Monday for starting patrolman is $615 a month.

Mrs. Brown, who is childless, said she feels qualified because her father has a background in law enforcement — he was a deputy sheriff in Salem, Ore., before moving to Grand Island. Her father trained her in the use of firearms, she can ride a motorcycle and she presently drives a pilot car for mobile homes, she said.

Mrs. Brown said the possibility of being confronted by unusually or dangerous persons was of no major concern to her because she believed the Patrol would teach her more about the art of defense and diplomacy.

She said, however, that "it would be nice if law officers were without firearms as they are in England."

The Patrol's first application from a woman came last year. The woman, from Scottsbluff, was rejected when she did not meet the Patrol's criteria for eyesight.

Susan Reeves, 23, of Ralston, a 1973 graduate of Kearney State College, applied in March. All three applicants were given the initial test.

Patrol Lt. Col. C. P. Karthaus said the Patrol welcomes the applications.

He said if women were accepted into the next class — beginning in September — only minor changes in housing would have to be made.

He said no special privileges would be granted to the women and they would be expected to attend six weeks of school.

Following school, they would serve a six-month probationary term and then take two more weeks of school before being assigned to road patrol, he said.

Jumper Missing In River

Rulo, Neb. (AP) — A Butler, Mo., man is missing and presumed dead after jumping off a high bridge into the Missouri River at Rulo, Neb., Sunday evening.

The man has been identified as 22-year-old Steven K. Bailey. The incident is being investigated by Richardson County Sheriff L.D. Camblin.

The sheriff said that Bailey was with three other men who had decided to go for a swim. The four men went to the top of a river bridge 50-65 feet above the river.

Wallace R. Hughes, 35, of Oregon, Mo., and Robert Shaffer, 23, of Forrest City, Mo., were the first to jump into the river. Bailey and Mike Calkin, 25, of Oregon, Mo., followed Hughes and Shaffer into the river.

Hughes and Shaffer swam to shore but witnesses said Bailey landed on his side and started to go under.

Calkin, noticing Bailey in trouble, tried to drag him to safety, but had to release him because of the strong current. Melvin Harmon of Falls City rescued Calkin with a riverboat, but Bailey disappeared under the water.

2 Canoeists Cross State In 3 Weeks

Plattsmouth (AP) — While cars take about a day to get across Nebraska, another form of travel takes a lot longer.

The point was made by two students at the University of Nebraska, Dave Kasl and Phil Phieffer, who three weeks ago started an eastward canoe trip in the Platte River from the Nebraska Wyoming border near Henry.

It's a 631 mile trip. They finished the trip at Plattsmouth Sunday. About 60 friends and relatives were on hand to greet them.

They were presented with admiralships in the Nebraska Navy by the chairman of the State Centennial Commission, Wayne Ziebarth, and the chairman of the State Tourism Department, John Rosnow.

Kasl and Phieffer, both 22, averaged about 35 miles a day during the trip.

Power Cut Off By Tree Limb

A tree limb lying across two Lincoln Electric System (LES) lines knocked out power from 1:30 p.m. until 3:52 p.m. in part of south Lincoln Monday.

The limb shorted out lines in the alley between 14th & 15th, from D to E, and burned down two main feeder lines, an LES spokesman said.

The power outage affected an area from 5th to 16th, J to Peach, the spokesman said.

State Corn Planting 97% Done; Crop Condition 'Mostly Good'

Nebraska's corn planting is 97% complete, compared with 92% a year ago, the State-Federal Bureau of Agricultural Statistics reported Monday in its weekly crop-weather report.

Condition of the corn crop is "mostly good, with 9% reported as excellent, 68% good and 23% fair," the report said.

Soybean planting is 72% complete, compared with 55% a year earlier and 71% average, it was pointed out. Planting of sorghum is 82% complete, compared with 62% a year ago and 78% normal.

"Soybean and sorghum conditions are rated as mostly good," the bureau stated.

Some corn, soybeans and sorghum were replanted during the 64th annual Rose Festival parade June 9. Candy sales, two soup suppers and three benefit dances featuring donated performances by area professional musicians raised $16,500 to finance the trip, which will take 89 band members and 17 adult sponsors to the Tetons, Yellowstone, the Mormon Tabernacle, Craters of the Moon, a fish hatchery, cheese and plywood factories, and the Pacific Ocean. Carpenter Seeks Curtis' Aid In Getting Grain Alcohol Plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Carl Curtis and State Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff met on friendly ground Monday the first meeting since Curtis narrowly defeated Carpenter in the November senatorial race in Nebraska.

Carpenter was one of five state senators in Washington to meet with U.S. senators and federal officials on the possibility of setting up a grain alcohol plant in Nebraska.

The meeting was authorized by the Nebraska Legislature, which voted to send a committee to Washington to seek money for a plant to convert grain into alcohol to be used as a motor fuel additive.

Meeting first Monday with Sens. Curtis and Herman Talmadge, Georgia Democrat, the Nebraska lawmakers said they were somewhat encouraged by Talmadge's suggestion that such a plant possibly could be constructed as an experiment under the Rural Development Act.

Talmadge is chairman of the Senate Agriculture and Forestry Committee.

Sen. Carpenter outlined the plan, saying about $20 million would be needed for the project which would hopefully be set up in Nebraska experimentally by the federal government.

Referring to the presence at the meeting of his former political opponent, Carpenter told Talmadge, "You know I opposed Carl Curtis in November. I carried the cities and he carried the country. Now we need one to help the other. In the fraternity of politicians I look to him to help us."

Carpenter was joined in Washington by State Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton, Ralph Kelly of Grand Island, Jerry Stromer of Kearney and Gary Anderson of Axtell.

Presidential Scholars Announced

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon Monday announced selection of the 1973 presidential scholars, including two Nebraskans.

The Cornhusker State scholars are Myron D. Andes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Myron D. Andes of Omaha, and Susan A. Heermann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo T. Heermann of 5910 Sunrise Rd., Lincoln.

The 121 high school seniors chosen by the commission on presidential scholars for outstanding academic achievement and leadership potential will go to Washington June 17 for a three-day visit.

During the Washington visit they will meet with members of Congress, cabinet officers and other high government officials. On June 19 they will be honored at a white house ceremony.

Weekend Traffic Mishaps Claim 3

By The Associated Press
Traffic accidents in Nebraska Sunday claimed the lives of three persons.

A pickup-pedestrian accident in Cherry County took the life of 20-year-old Gene Tryon, formerly of Scottsbluff, who had been working as a painter in the Valentine area for the past several months.

Two persons were killed about midnight Sunday in the head-on collision of a pickup truck and a car about 1.5 miles west of Jansen on Highway 136. Tryon died about 10 p.m. Sunday when he was struck by a pickup truck 7½ miles west of Valentine on Highway 20.

Cherry County Sheriff Jim Ward said Tryon was walking along the highway toward the east when he apparently stepped out in front of eastbound pickup operated by Alfred McCollister of Valentine. Ward said light rain was falling at the time and visibility poor. Tryon died at the scene.

Jefferson County Sheriff Clyde Kellie identified the dead in the Jansen crash as Dennis Adkins, 21, of Fairbury and Dennis W. Timmons, 20, of Salina, Kan.

The sheriff said Adams was driving a westbound car and Timmons an eastbound pickup when the two collided.

Kellie said two passengers in the pickup, 17-year-old Scott Rauch and 17-year-old Jeffrey Clark Sails, both of Salina, were hospitalized in nearby Fairbury with extensive injuries.

near Columbus.

The State Accident Records Bureau Monday reported the May 20 death of a Norfolk child would be counted as a fatality.

Killed was Kelly King, 2; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert King. She died after being struck by a car on a county road near Columbus.

Interior Acting To Lease Mineral Rights At Sidney

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Department of Interior is taking steps to lease the mineral rights under the land that once housed the Sioux Army Depot north of Sidney, Neb.

An official in the Branch of Leasing in the Department's Division of Upland Minerals said Monday that a new public land order is being prepared to clarify current agency responsibility for the rights.

When that order is issued by the secretary of the interior, the department plans to offer the rights for lease, Dale Zimmerman said.

"We don't know how long it might take but my surest conjecture is that we should have something to offer in about 90 days," he said.

The new public land order would require the concurrence of the General Services Administration which has been engaged in a dispute with the Interior Department for several years over the control of the mineral rights on the 20,000-acre tract of land.

The dispute culminated this year when the GSA offered the mineral rights for sale, then, rejected to Interior Department pressure less than 24 hours before the sealed bids were to be opened.

"We believe that the GSA's action to halt the sale on May 24 is an indication that they will go along with our plans to lease the minerals in the near future," Zimmerman said.

The GSA's halting of the mineral rights sale received vehement criticism among oilmen who said they had spent huge sums of money in exploring the property prior to bidding.

State GOP Chief Hails Republican Legislators

State Republican Chairman William Barrett of Lexington said Monday taxpayers can thank the Republican members of the Legislature — rather than Gov. J. James Exon — for a retroactive cut in the state income tax.

A bill, LB10, providing for slicing the tax from 15 to 13% of a taxpayer's federal income tax liability was signed into law by the governor Saturday.

The reduction will be retroactive to last Jan. 1.

"I was pleased to find out that 25 Republicans voted for the tax cut," Barrett said. "In the week-long fight to cut taxes, Gov. Exon was consistently opposed, saying it was a 'yo-yo' approach" prompted by political expediency.

Barrett said he and Republican State Auditor Ray

Johnson last week noted that "Exon's tax position three years ago was one of total opposition to the $51.2 million general fund balance he has run up as governor."

He added that when Exon signed the bill "and tried to take credit" for the tax cut he "pulled one of his all too common switcheroos."

It was Republican Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly who led the battle for the reduction, Barrett said.

He described the reduced rate as "modest" in view of the present "giant" general fund balance, adding, "as a practical matter, we can probably afford a further reduction next year."

Girl's Condition 'Serious' After Cycle Accident

A Lincoln girl is listed in "serious" condition at Bryan Memorial Hospital with injuries she received in a car-motorcycle accident at Cotner and L late Sunday night, according to police reports.

Police said Virginia Phillips, 18, of 2401 So. 70th, was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by David Bowen, 17, of 5851 Margo, when it was in collision with a car driven by Clay Johnson, 17, of 2500 So. 17th.

Bowen refused treatment for a bruised right thigh and Johnson was not injured.

Police Dismantle Antioch Barriers

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — Police moved onto the Antioch College campus on Monday for the second time. They took down barricades blocking the entrance to the administration building.

The police moved back to a nearby staging area after escorting trucks carrying the barricades off campus. Sheriff Russell Bradley of Greene County, under court order to keep the college open, led the force of more than 100 officers, equipped with riot gear.

About 70 students resumed their picketing after the police moved back.

Many nonstriking students and faculty members stood by, leaving only sparse attendance in the few classes held in other buildings.

Bradley and 21 carloads of deputies moved onto the campus when strikers took a lunch break.

The sheriff and a dozen deputies entered the administration building and others escorted four trucks loaded with the debris from the barricades.

About 70 students trailed along with the trucks. Deputies walked alongside.

"Police off campus! Police off campus!" the strikers shouted.

The students went back to their picketing when the trucks reached a roadway about 300 yards away.

The barricades had been torn down once by police on Friday.

Counterespionage Responsibility Denied

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's government denied responsibility Monday for the counterespionage that has been tied to charges of vote-rigging in a building political storm in West Germany.

Replying to opposition calls for a "ruthless" probe into the "Steiner affair," an Interior Ministry spokesman told newsmen the Brandt administration refuses to comment because the state government in Baden-Wuerttemberg is the seat of responsibility.

Julius Steiner, 49, an opposition Christian Democratic Union lawmaker until last November's elections, unleashed the storm Friday when he admitted he spied on his own party for East Germany, with the full knowledge of West German counterespionage agents.

But he steadfastly denied widespread allegations that he sold his vote to Brandt's ruling coalition in a crucial parliamentary showdown that almost toppled the government last year.

In the April 1972 parliamentary vote, the then opposition leader, Rainer Barzel, failed by two ballots to get the majority for a no-confidence motion aimed at ousting Brandt's government. Barzel recently resigned as opposition parliamentary leader.

Steiner admitted he was one of the two opposition men who abstained in the secret ballot last year, saying he felt Barzel would have been a "national catastrophe" as chancellor.

Both he and spokesmen for Brandt's Social-Liberal coalition denied reports that he was bribed to abstain.

But another former lawmaker, Wilhelm Helms, 49, claimed he refused a $66,000 offer from Brandt's coalition for his vote. Helms had switched from the government to the opposition side of the lower house a few weeks before the alleged offer.

The 8-foot, 760-pound Alaskan brown bear made short work of his wrestling partner, Patrolman Noah Thomas. The Mentor, Ohio, patrolman stood to win $1,500 if he won the match. Not only was he pushed down and pinned in about a minute, but the bear then began to lick his face — much to the delight of 1,000 fans. The benefit meet was staged by police.

Bleak Land Braces For Eclipse Gazers

NOUAKCHOTT, Mauritania (AP) — Tourists, amateur astronomers and scientists are flocking into this dusty wilderness to witness an exceptionally long eclipse of the sun on June 30.

Mauritania, a bleak land of shifting sand dunes and tough blue-robed nomads who roam the burning Sahara, is bracing for the shocks.

The influx of about 3,500 stargazers will amount to the biggest tourist boom this poor but hospitable desert nation has ever experienced. Some are already banding the event the "Woodstock of Africa."

The tide of visitors will overwhelm existing housing facilities, which amount to 300 hotel beds in the entire country.

The government, already burdened by the effects of a catastrophic drought, is doing all its meager resources will allow to welcome the visitors.

The solar eclipse will last a maximum of 7 minutes, 8 seconds, and one of similar duration will not be seen again for 213 years.

Some astronomers will watch this international event from the other side of Africa in Kenya, where viewing conditions are less favorable but facilities for coping with tourists are considerably more developed.

As the moon moves in front of the sun it will cast a 100-mile-wide "path of totality" — the condition of total eclipse — beginning off the South American coast moving eastward across the Atlantic.

It will first hit Africa in Mauritania on the west coast and pass across Mali, Algeria, Niger, Chad, the Central African Republic, Sudan, Uganda, Kenya and South Somalia.

The eclipse will end over the Indian Ocean southeast of the Seychelles Islands.

Observers are particularly interested in studying the corona or gaseous halo around the sun, which can only be seen well when the bright sun is eclipsed by the moon.

Other eclipse watchers will be looking for evidence of a 10th planet named Vulcan which some contend orbits the sun more closely than Mercury.

Nursing Homes' Head Guilty In Swindle

NEW YORK (AP) — The former board chairman of the Four Seasons Nursing Centers of America pleaded guilty on Monday to charges stemming from what authorities called a massive swindle that cost the public over $200 million.

Jack L. Clark, in a statement accompanying his plea, said he was "guilty of a conspiracy to violate the federal securities law," but was innocent of other counts in the 65-count indictment alleging fraud and false stock filing.

Clark, 47, of Oklahoma City, headed the nursing home firm which went bankrupt in 1970 and since has been succeeded by the court-formed company, Anta, Inc., based in Oklahoma City.

Federal authorities said Clark made about $10 million in illegal profits from the business scheme.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas P. Griesa set Sept. 10 for sentencing in the case. Clark faces a maximum of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Clark, who is free on bail, said he was "willing to accept the consequences (of his actions) as soon as is practicable" and then wanted to devote his energies to "building up a ranch from which I expect to earn my livelihood."

Clark said he bought a 1,750-acre ranch near Ada, Okla., for $285,000 and intended to breed beef cattle.

In his guilty plea, Clark claimed that the nursing homes built and operated by the corporation were quality ventures and still are.

He said that when the New York securities firm, Walston & Co., proposed "going public," he did not know what the term meant.

Walston & Co. was the main underwriter of stock in the company. It became a glamor issue, zooming from $11 to the equivalent of $182 a share before it fizzled and Four Seasons went bankrupt in June, 1970.

Two Walston executives, Gordon H. McCallum, 68, of Paradise Valley, Ariz., and Glenn R. Miller, 60 of Glenview, Ill., pleaded guilty in January and are awaiting sentencing. Five other defendants are to be tried in Oklahoma City, where they said their witnesses are, but Clark insisted on trial here where the indictment was returned last Dec. 20.

Federal officials said the state of Ohio was tricked into lending Four Seasons $4 million and European investors lost $15 million in debentures.

SEVENTY-ONE YEARS ... after the honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perry celebrate their wedding anniversary with a kiss.

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

On June 4, 1902, the "Lincoln Evening News" carried front-page stories about Theodore Roosevelt's handling of the anthracite coal strike in New York, and about Populist demands concerning voter registration procedures.

However, in Malcolm, Nebr., news of another sort was taking place. That evening, Miss Victoria Tremain and Charles Perry were married at the bride's home, with only members of the families attending the ceremony.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Perry celebrated 71 years of marriage at a party which took place at Milder Manor Nursing home where they now reside.

For the special event, Mrs. Perry once again donned the silk wedding gown that she had worn for the first time almost three-quarters of a century ago.

According to Mr. Perry, both he and his wife grew up in Nebraska, although she came to the state at the age of three months from her birthplace in Illinois. They met while attending Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln.

As Mrs. Perry recalls it, their first "date" began as something of a fiasco. When Mr. Perry arrived at the Tremain home, she reports that she "had ridden out by horseback to cover the peanut blossoms." As she saw her suitor approaching, Mrs. Perry briefly considered her "unsuitable" attire, then jumped on the horse and fled back to the house, leaving her rather befuddled visitor standing in the road.

Immediately following their marriage, the newlyweds took up residence on a farm in Cass County, where they lived until 1911.

From 1911 to 1924, they made their home in rural Malcolm, and during the latter year they moved to Lincoln.

When asked for the secret of establishing such an enduring relationship, Mr. Perry replied, "Mind your wife and you'll get along all right." And Mrs. Perry added, "Neither of us tried to be boss."

Mr. Perry, who is 94 years old, and his 93-year-old wife are both members of Eastern Star, and he has also been active in the Masons and Scottish Rite.

They have one son — Owen Perry of Malcolm — two grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Looking at his wife, Mr. Perry mischievously reflected, "I've had to put up with her for 71 years." However, the twinkle in his eye conveyed the message that those 71 years have been very happy ones indeed.

Readers Sound Off On Euthanasia

DEAR ABBY If you never do another thing for humanity as long as you live, you should go down in history for taking a stand against prolonging the life of the terminally ill by means of gadgets and tubes. The "Living Will" which permits a person to express his wishes concerning his own fate should be become helpful beyond recovery was never more needed than it is today.

It is a shame that some of these doctors can't see those patients each day after they are transferred from the hospital to nursing homes to die slowly, and also see the families day by day as they sit helplessly by and watch their loved ones go thru the painful slow dying process. Sometimes the patient is reduced to a vegetable, while the physical, emotional, and financial strain on the family is devastating. I just can't believe that God ever intended that anyone should be put thru this kind of ordeal, or that doctors should practice this type of medicine.

I write this letter after watching a long drawn out death in my own family, and I want to say that your letter could do untold good in the prevention of such tragedies. Bless you for publishing information that may start people thinking about the plight of these pitiful old people whose lives are prolonged by tubes, and the families who become destitute during the process.

YOUR FRIEND IN DURHAM, N.C.
MISS VAN BUREN You are not an authority on anything. Who do you think you are? God? God determines who shall die and when — not you or anyone else. May I deserve euthanasia if I ever read your stinking rotten column again!

A BELIEVER IN BUFFALO

DEAR ABBY In response to your views on death and dying, as a member of the clergy, I would like to say one thing: AMEN! God love you.

TED S. SPONSEL, Pastor

Bayshore Baptist Church
Daly City, Cal.

DEAR ABBY Dying with dignity is important, but there are greater values. One of our sisters is dying a slow and painful death from cancer. I picked up her Bible to read to her and it fell open to Paul's letter to Colossians where she had marked the passage, "It makes me happy to suffer for you, as I am suffering now, and in my own body to do what I can to make up all that has still to be undergone by Christ for the sake of his body, the Church."

Abby, that sister is doing more for us now by patient suffering than she did even as an outstanding superior and administrator. Suffering can be redemptive. God will give us the strength to bear whatever He permits to happen to us, if we but trust Him.

SISTER DANIEL
Daughter Of Charity
St. Louis

DEAR ABBY Only my fiancé knows my real age because I've been lying about it for several years. I am engaged to an angel of a man who attributes the smoothness of our relationship to our complete honesty.

Altho I've never lied to my fiancé about anything else, I've repeated that lie about my age dozens of times in his presence, with friends, applying for graduate school, credit cards, etc.

What I want your advice on is this: Must my fiancé ever know my real age? It would be so embarrassing to tell him now. He thinks he's two years older than me, when actually he is two months younger.

OLDER WOMAN

DEAR WOMAN Tell him and tell him now. Not only for your own peace of mind but in anticipation of the day you'll be eligible for Social Security. ("Oh, what a tangled web we weave when first we practice to deceive.")

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Opening lead - queen of spades.

There are innumerable slam-oriented conventions, but one of the most valuable of them, especially for slam bidding, is the grand slam force.

It is not a new convention — it is at least 40 years old — but, for one reason or another, it has never been popularly accepted. This is somewhat strange, since the grand slam force is easy to apply and hard to abuse, and is furthermore worth a bushel of points when the occasion arises.

Let's see how it works in this hand where South bids a club, North a heart, South two diamonds and North four diamonds.

At this point South can feel virtually certain of a small slam and should seriously consider a grand slam. The grand slam does not depend on how many points or aces North has, but on whether North's values include the A-K of trumps. If North has them, a grand slam is just around the corner. If North doesn't have them, South wants no part of a grand slam.

Accordingly, South makes the artificial bid of five notrump — the grand slam force. This requests partner to bid seven of the agreed trump suit if he has two of the three top trump honors. North responds seven diamonds and the contract is easily made. North does not weigh the general value of his hand; he merely obeys South's command to pinpoint his trump holding. With only the ace of trumps, or the king, he would respond six diamonds.

The only thing to watch out for, in using the grand slam force, is to avoid confusing it with Blackwood. Thus, a Blackwood four notrump bid that is followed by five notrump, after partner responds, asks for kings and has nothing to do with the grand slam force.

Y's Owl Pre-School Registration

Registration is now open for the YWCA Y's Owl Pre-School program. The three locations offer a flexible program to develop social, physical, emotional and intellectual skills.

The locations are South Center at 4000 Sheridan Blvd. Unit Place Center at the First United Methodist Church, 50th and St. Paul Sts. and North Center YWCA Havelock Center, 4332 N. 62 St.

The primary goal of the pre-school is to provide an organized, continuous educational experience geared to the maturity level and growth pattern of the child. This involves helping the child gain a positive feeling about himself as well as to care about the needs of others.

Special activities such as baking, field trips and nature walks are planned and each week includes at least one creative project and musical activity.

The YWCA Child Development Committee makes all policies for the pre-school and is responsible for helping hire teachers, set up the budget and buy equipment. They also organize parent involvement programs and serve as liaisons between the parents and the YWCA.

the program or to register your child for next fall contact Sue Scott, 432-2802.

UNO Said On Edge Of Major Expansion

OMAHA. (AP)—The chancellor of the University of Nebraska at Omaha said Monday that UNO is on the verge of expanding at home and abroad. Chancellor Ronald W. Roskens said at a news conference that UNO may take bids this month for construction of a $3.7 million classroom building.

Hanks Resigns From Pius X

James E. Hanks, principal of Pius X High School the past year, has resigned and plans to become principal of an out-of-town junior high school.

The Rev. Ivan Vap, Pius superintendent, said the school was interviewing applicants and a successor is expected to be named next month.

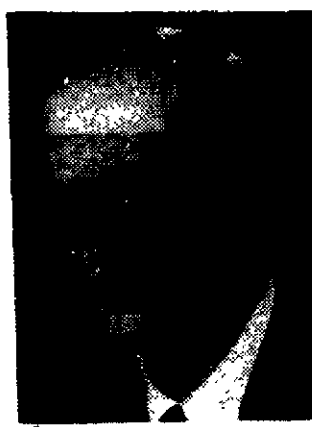

He said the 1973-74 capital construction budget approved last week by the legislature gives UNO the go-ahead for an additional $6.9 million in improvements.

Largest of these is a $5.1 million library to be built west of the campus.

Roskens said $229,000 would be used to acquire new property.

The chancellor also announced that the UNO program with the Air Force overseas soon may be expanded to two bases in England and, possibly, to one in Greece.

The university now has a contract with the Air Force to provide graduate courses in urban studies at two bases in Germany and one in Spain for military personnel.

Aid To Education To Go Before '74 Legislature Early

The 1974 legislature will have to deal with the issue of increased state aid to education early rather than late as happened at the 1973 session, according to Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly.

Warner was the chief sponsor of LB472, which would have transferred half the cost of running public schools from the local property tax to the state sales and income tax, with a cost estimated at $106 million.

The bill was passed, vetoed by Gov. J. J. Exon and fell one vote short of the 30 votes needed to override a veto last Friday during the final day of the 1973 session.

Next year, Warner said, the proposal will be very similar to LB472 and will be introduced on the first day of the session, permitting a public hearing to be held a week later.

Triple Crown Facts

With a partially-selfish motive of trying to cut down on the phone calls from bar stool debaters as Secretariat's bid for the Triple Crown nears, here are the answers to some of the questions most likely to pop up this week:

Kelso did not win any of the Triple Crown races. He did not run in the Kentucky Derby nor in the Preakness nor in the Belmont.

Ten horses, among them the Ford Stables' Kauai King in 1966, have, like Secretariat, won the first two legs, the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, but failed in the Belmont.

Since Citation last won the Triple Crown in 1948, six 3-year-olds have been in the same position as is Secretariat.

They were, with the Belmont winner in parenthesis: 1958—Tim Tam (Cavan), 1961—Cary Back (Sherlock), 1964—Northern Dancer (Quadrangle), 1966—Kauai King (Amberoid), 1969—Majestic Prince (Arts and Letters) and 1971—Canonero II (Pass Catcher).

Only two of those six even managed to finish second in the Belmont—Tim Tam in 1958 and Majestic Prince in 1969.

25 Win Two Of Three

Twenty-five horses have won two of the three races in the Triple Crown.

Only one jockey, Eddie Arcaro, has ridden two Triple Crown winners, Whirlaway in 1941 and Citation in 1948.

The Belmont is the oldest of the Triple Crown races, being run first in 1867. The first Preakness was run in 1873 and the first Kentucky Derby in 1875.

All three races have original entry deadline dates, but the Kentucky Derby is the only one of the three that strictly adheres to the date.

An owner may enter his horse in the Preakness and/or Belmont after the deadline has passed by paying a supplemental entry fee.

Thanks to this provision Citation was entered in the Preakness after he had won the Kentucky Derby.

Inflation Hits Thoroughbreds

Your supermarket's meat counter isn't the only place where inflation has hit.

Sir Barton, the first Triple Crown winner in 1919, earned $116,857 for his entire career. Secretariat won $456,404 as a 2-year-old.

The richest of the Triple Crown races is the Preakness. It also is the shortest at 1 1/16 miles while the Kentucky Derby is 1 1/4 miles and the Belmont 1 1/2 miles.

The Derby winner gets red roses, the Preakness winner black-eyed susans and the Belmont champion gets carnations.

Previous Triple Crown winners are Sir Barton in 1919, Gallant Fox in 1930, Omaha in 1935, War Admiral in 1937, Whirlaway 1941, Count Fleet 1943, Assault 1946 and Citation 1948.

Citation's winning times of 2:05 2/5 in the Derby and 2:02 2/5 in the Preakness rank well down on the list of best times for those two races and his 2:28 1/5 in winning the Belmont is only the fifth best time in that leg of the Triple Crown.

'Shaking Loose' Set For Champ Foreman

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman will return to the gym this week to begin "shaking loose" for his first title defense, his manager said Monday.

The fight apparently will be Sept. 1 in Tokyo against Puerto Rico's Joe "King" Roman, ranked by the World Boxing Council as the No. 1 heavyweight contender.

"We were hoping for a fight in July, but if nothing materializes soon, the Tokyo fight will be the first defense," said Dick Sadler, Foreman's manager and trainer.

The WBC last weekend authorized the Foreman-Roman title match, and Japanese fight promoter Muneo Mizoguchi announced Monday that it would be on a program including another title fight.

Ricardo Arredondo of Mexico, WBC junior lightweight champion, is scheduled to meet Morito Kashiwaba of Japan in the other bout at Tokyo's 15,000-seat Budokan Martial Arts Hall.

Popein Slogan: 'Success'

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Popein is the new coach of the New York Rangers and he comes to the job complete with a slogan.

"Success is a journey, not a destination," said Popein Monday after the National Hockey League Rangers announced his appointment to replace Emile Francis as coach. Francis remains as general manager of the team.

The Rangers spent the better part of eight years on a successful journey with Francis behind their bench. The team is the only one in the NHL to have made the playoffs in each of the last seven seasons and Francis departs the coaching job with a cumulative record of 283 victories, 170 defeats and 84 ties.

"I've felt all along that I'm one of the luckiest guys in the world to be working for and with the people in this organization," said Francis. "I chose to give up the coaching job because it was becoming increasingly difficult for me to do that job and the managing job as well. It's a competitive player market today and you can't leave any stone unturned in the area of recruiting new talent."

There had been speculation that the Rangers' repeated playoff failures might have caused top club management to request that Francis surrender the coaching job. He denied that emphatically.

"I want to make one thing clear," he continued. "From the day I took over this club, whatever decisions that were made were my decisions and that goes for this one too. If that wasn't the case, I wouldn't be here two minutes."

Popein, 42, has coached minor league teams in the New York system for the last five seasons, serving in the dual capacity of general manager-coach of the Rangers' Providence farm club in the American Hockey League last season.

Popein coached the Omaha Knights of the Central Hockey League during the 1968-69, 1969-70 and 1971-72 seasons.

Valley District Sets School Bond Vote

Valley, Neb. (AP) — Patrons of the Valley School District will decide the fate Tuesday of a $1.28 million bond issue to build a new junior-senior high school.

The bonds would add 10 mills to the present levy of 86.56 mills, or 86.56 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

State Income Tax Cut Pleases GOP Chairman

Bill Barrett, Republican state chairman, Monday said he was pleased with the state income school levy and you vote to go more, you must have an awful lot of faith in the educational system in this country. I hope they the voters do," he said.

The new building would replace Valley's present four-year high school and also accommodate seventh and eighth graders now taught in the district's nine-year elementary school.

The present high school was built in 1924 to hold 200 students. Enrollment this year was 211, and while 47 seniors graduated, 80 freshman are expected next fall, the superintendent said.

Apartments To Replace Old Mansion

A new apartment complex is scheduled to be completed by this fall, built on the site of a former Nebraska governor's mansion.

The old mansion, at the southwest corner of 11th and H Sts. has been torn down after its owner, Wesley Klein, decided it would be too expensive to make a series of repairs ordered by the city inspection office.

In its later years, the building had been used as a series of apartments occupied mostly by elderly persons.

The house was the governor's mansion during the last century when Govs. Silas Garber and Albinus Nance lived there.

Three-Screen Drive-In Approved

...Plan Previously Stalled Due To Traffic Problems

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday unanimously approved the application of Davis Theaters to build a three-screen drive-in at Yolande and Cornhusker Hwy.

The matter was held over from last week following a 3 to 3 tie vote on the question.

However, councilwomen Helen Bosalis and Sue Bailey changed their votes on the matter. Councilman Steve Cook, who last week voted against the application, was absent Monday.

Councilman Max Denney declared a conflict-of-interest and did not vote.

The three council members originally voted against the application due to major traffic control problems at the Cornhusker-Yolande intersection.

Last week several amendments were approved in an attempt to control traffic flow in the area.

City Traffic Engineer Bob Holsinger told the council Monday, "This intersection is impossible to signalize" because of the angle at which Yolande transects the highway and resulting visual problems.

Holsinger said the Davis application just brought the traffic problem to the council's attention.

"No matter what is developed here — there's going to be a traffic problem," he said, adding that the reason the intersection

"is functioning is because of a low volume of traffic there now."

As a stop-gap measure to handle the situation, Holsinger recommended that the NW 20th intersection be signalized and that the median on the highway be closed. Closing the median would mean that no cross traffic on Yolande would be allowed — only right turns.

He also outlined several other alternative ways to control traffic at the intersection, including placing a cul-de-sac at Yolande near the highway intersection, thus allowing no access to Cornhusker at all.

Holsinger also said that Yolande could be relocated to the north.

In the ensuing action to direct Holsinger to present a cost of implementing the alternatives outlined, Baker dissented.

Attorney Edward Perry told the council that the firm wants to build a larger plant and to sell two other lots in the area.

In further action the council unanimously approved Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf's appointment of Joan Bowers to the Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) Board.

Mrs. Bowers will fill the unexpired term of County Commissioner Jan Gauger, who resigned.

Last week the council held off action on the appointment.

Councilman Bob Sikyta said the only reason he would go along with the appointment is "based on the fact that the council had received resumes of two other people" he had suggested for the job.

Sikyta said he favored broadening the representation on various city boards and committees.

Mrs. Bosalis interjected that she had been calling for greater representation for years.

"We've been told for years that businessmen were more qualified — so I'm delighted that someone else wants it, too," she said.

In further action the council:

Damage Said 'Considerable' In House Fire

A fire late Monday afternoon at 2100 C resulted in "considerable" damage to a bedroom and its contents, according to district fire chief Curtis Kadick.

The fire at the Wayne Flickinger residence was apparently started by Flickinger's grandson, Shawn, 6, who was playing with a candle in the upstairs bedroom and caught the curtains on fire, Kadick said.

Kadick said it took approximately five minutes to locate the fire and bring it under control.

There was heavy smoke and water damage to the rest of the house.

Peasants Arrested

Guatemala City (UPI) — Police arrested three peasants on murder charges for hacking to death American farmer Willard T. Hodgson.

Council Apparently Receptive To LES Underground Plans

City officials appeared receptive Monday to Lincoln Electric System (LES) plans to accelerate its underground distribution program.

Implementation of the LES Board's newly adopted underground policy will cost additional money, LES Administrator Walter A. Canney told the City Council — the group which has the final say on the matter at budget session.

Canney said undergrounding lines is desirable for several reasons — better reliability, maintenance and aesthetics.

$500,000 Extra

At the May LES Board meeting Canney estimated that an additional $500,000 to $600,- 000 will be needed to cover the program.

Additionally, he said the burial of a high voltage 115-kilowatt transmission line would cost an additional million dollars.

The 115-kilowatt line will run from 20th and Pioneers to 29th and Leighton, where it will serve a new substation proposed for that location.

Putting the high charged line on overhead power lines would cost between $450,000 and $500,000.

Burying the cable underground would cost approximately $1.4 million.

'Heart Of Town'

Canney pointed out that the line will run "through the heart of town" and several parks, including Woods — which would make burying the line desirable.

He said there may be some possibility of obtaining federal funds for burying the line if it goes through park land.

The only other similar high powered line hooked onto overhead poles runs along 56th.

"Either we put this line underground now or leave it for 40 years," Canney commented.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said, "I think the feeling is to go underground."

And Councilman Bob Sikyta added, "We really don't have any choice in this day and age but to go underground."

Democratic Governors Divided On Watergate Affair Resolution

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Stateline, Nev. — A split in the Democratic governors bloc surfaced Monday at a noon caucus over whether a resolution regarding the Watergate affair should be endorsed by the 31 Democrats and sent to the full conference for consideration.

Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan, caucus chairman, suggested Democrats pose a series of questions to President Richard Nixon in order to clear up ambiguities concerning Nixon's role, if any, in the bungled burglary and the subsequent unsuccessful cover-up, according to Gov. J. James Exon.

Exon reported after the closed session that Gilligan had withdrawn the motion without a vote in the face of stiff opposition from an unspecified number of governors led by Exon.

Later at a press conference Gilligan spoke only in generalities and declined to identify himself or anyone else as promoting the resolution.

"The sponsor of the resolution did not authorize me to reveal his identity," Gilligan said.

Such a resolution could still be introduced by an individual governor directly for the full conference's consideration.

"It's a distinct possibility," Gilligan said.

However, judging from earlier statements by Democratic governors including Jimmy Carter of Georgia, Dan Walker of Illinois, and Robert Docking of Kansas, the Gilligan resolution would fall far short of the 75% majority needed to pass any resolution.

Exon said that the Gilligan resolution would serve "no useful purpose" and might encumber the grand jury investigations.

Rand Revaluation

Cape Town, South Africa (AP) — South Africa will revalue the rand upward by about 5%, Finance Minister Nico Diebrechts said.

"This is such a serious crisis that partisan politics should be kept out," Exon said.

At least one Democratic governor, Patrick Lucey of Wisconsin, publicly counted himself in the Gilligan camp.

Lucey said he did not see how the American political process could be repaired in the wake of the Watergate unless Nixon resigns.

"Whatever the guilt or innocence of all the individuals thought to have participated in this sordid affair and its cover-up... the office of the Presidency has been impugned to such a degree that I do not believe it is rehabilitatable short of (Nixon's resignation).

"The facts that concern me the most," Lucey said, "relate not to the details of who did what, but what is happening in the meantime. In terms of the shrinkage of the dollar and runaway inflation, in foreign affairs, in the day-to-day management of American government, there is evidence of a paralysis that may soon approach rigor mortis."

Lucey said the resignation is preferable to impeachment.

Lucey added although Vice President Spiro Agnew would not be his first choice for president, Agnew's apparent isolation from any involvement would appear to make him "the right person" for the presidency.

Gambling Dates From Antiquity, Professor Says

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Florence Nightingale David has been studying statistics and probabilities ever since she served the British in World War II by analyzing German buzz bomb patterns.

Among courses she teaches at the University of California is one that deals with man's historic indulgence in gambling, a vice she traces from antiquity right up to the modern Las Vegas dice tables.

"I hope any who may have gambled before entering the class will never risk his money again after having his eyes opened," said the 63-year-old professor. She has a collection of animal heel bones that were the forerunners of dice. Yep, she admitted with a smile, some of them were weight-loaded by crooked gamblers of an earlier age.

ON THE JOB the year around

There's one particular thing which characterizes the newspaperboy beyond all else: Dependability. Through summer, winter, heat, cold, rain, sun—he's there, keeping his papers neat and clean, delivering them promptly day after day, leaving each copy in a safe, dry place, just where the customer wants it.

Certainly, there are times when the boy would rather go fishing or to the ball game, head for the swimming pool, or just goof off with his dog. But he knows that his customers are expecting him, and that, as a young businessman, he has responsibilities which he cannot lightly ignore. So, he covers his route and does remarkably little grumbling.

This, you see, is a man in the making. Here is a lad who is developing a trait that will benefit him—and others—throughout his life. The newspaperboy. The dependable one.

It's A Snap— On Paper...

Bellevue — By the time Bruce Hammond finished his orientation session in the Fontenelle Forest Nature Center's Ravine Room, we knew all there was to know about maps and compasses.

Meridians, azimuths, declinations, grid ticks, transverse projections, photo-planimetry. It was all a snap. Until we got outdoors, that is.

As an exercise in the use of map and compass — part of a backpacking series in the center's first "Mini-Course in Outdoor Living" — we were supposed to find our way cross-country to YMCA Camp Conota, about a mile and a quarter away as the crow flies.

The class was divided into four groups. Our group oriented our maps to the terrain with our compasses, plotted our direction of travel, plunged bravely down the slope into a ravine, and promptly got lost.

It wasn't Hammond's fault. A veteran of many years' back-country experience and a graduate of the National Outdoor Leadership School in Lander, Wyoming, the Lincolnite knew his subject and explained it lucidly.

Still, when we got to the bottom of the ravine — known as Child's Hollow — there was no trail going up the other side. The map showed one, but as we suddenly realized, there's many a slip twixt the map and the trip. Either the map was wrong, or...

Hiking in Fontenelle Forest isn't exactly like navigating Interstate-80, y'understand. A 1,500-acre preserve of untamed Missouri River bluff country devoted to nature education, the forest is virtually a jungle of hidden hollows, steep-banked ridges, and dense vegetation penetrated by a few winding trails — all in the midst of the Omaha-Bellevue-Council Bluffs metropolitan area.

Someone suggested we follow the hollow upstream. Maybe the trailhead would turn up. We did; no trail. Sierra Club member Gary Bayless then did the sensible thing: got out his map.

Up the opposite slope there was supposed to be a ridge with a clearing on top. Taking a chance, we climbed through the underbrush in that direction. Sure enough, there was the clearing — and the trail to Camp Conota.

We never did figure out how we got lost. But maybe more confidence in our directional aids was gained by losing our way and then reorienting ourselves than if we had never lost the trail.

U.S. Higher Education 'Adequate, Uneven'

NEW YORK (AP) — America's colleges and universities are doing a generally adequate, though somewhat uneven, job of fulfilling the basic purposes of higher education, the Carnegie Commission of Higher Education said Monday.

But the commission observed that a review of the purposes themselves was now under way, and said there could be continued conflict about them during the remaining quarter of this century.

The main point of conflict is "It Costs Less At The Golden Cue" likely to be whether higher education should serve as a base of action against existing society on behalf of a different future society, the commission said in a new report, "Purpose and Performance of Higher Education in the United States."

The 134-page report was issued at a news conference by Clark Kerr, commission chairman.

Until now, the commission said, American colleges and universities have done a superior job in enlarging human capability throughout society, and in forwarding pure research.

The institutions' performance in advancing educational and developmental growth of students was rated satisfactory. But the commission said more attention should be paid to the general education of students, to opportunities for their occupational preparation, and to the enhancement of their creative abilities.

On two other purposes of higher education — expanding educational justice and assisting critical evaluation of society for the sake of society's self renewal — the institutions got poorer marks from the commission.

The commission said educational justice could be improved by determined efforts to find places in colleges for young people from low-income and minority groups — with adequate financial assistance for their support.

It also recommended special efforts be made to find qualified members of minority groups and women for consideration for faculty positions.

The commission viewed higher education's role in the critical evaluation of society as "quite uneven in the past and uncertain for the future."

It said individual members of the campus community, but not the institution or its corporate bodies, should engage in such activity. However, the commission cautioned such individuals to keep in mind that "they are not the only people in society with a right to evaluate society."

The commission noticed that American higher education had become "heavily loaded with functions" over the years, ranging from providing financial support for students to advising and instructing persons and organizations outside the campus.

Food Stamp Funds Given Back; Millions Said Still Going Hungry

Washington (UPI) — The Agriculture Department said Monday it was returning $180 million in unspent food stamp funds to the treasury although Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said many millions who "ought to be getting either food stamps or commodities are not getting them."

Clayton K. Yeutter, assistant agriculture secretary, told the Senate Nutrition Committee the money had been appropriated as "a reserve fund in case we ran short" during the 1973 fiscal year ending June 30.

Kennedy, presiding at the hearing, said a committee report on hunger a week ago showed food needs were still widespread.

Participation in food assistance programs has more than doubled, from 7 million in 1969 to more than 15 million people in 1973, Yeutter said.

The commission said American higher education had not reordered its purposes decisively since the period around 1870, when it greatly expanded its functions to include research and service to society and opened its doors potentially to the mass entry of students.

U.S.-U.S.S.R. Swap Culture

MOSCOW (AP) — June will be a busy month of "Soviet-American cultural cooperation," the official news agency Tass reported Monday.

The U.S. skating ballet, "Holiday on Ice," is currently in the Soviet Union, and the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra is scheduled to perform. The Bolshoi Ballet and pupils of the Moscow Ballet School plan to tour the United States, Tass said.

Teletransfer SAVINGS ACCOUNT

DEPOSIT OR WITHDRAW SAVINGS BY PHONE! Earn daily interest on short-term checking account surpluses or temporarily-idle dollars!

FOR INDIVIDUALS...BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL PEOPLE...CORPORATIONS

Dollars lying in a checking account don't earn a penny for you! But now—with a single phone call—those dollars can work for you every day they're on deposit—for a week, a month, or longer! They'll earn a generous 5% per annum, compounded continuously (a 5.127% effective annual yield) from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal—in a Teletransfer Savings Account at Commercial Federal! You can open your Teletransfer Savings Account any time—minimum balance $1,000... and then deposit or withdraw any time. Leave your money on deposit for one week or more—and earn interest for every day it's in your account. To collect every penny of interest your money has earned, just keep the account open through the end of the quarter—when the interest will be paid or credited. Money is transferred directly to or from your local bank.

DEPOSITS OVER $500,000 MUST BE APPROVED BY A SENIOR OFFICER

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

Suppose you have more money in your checking account than you really need at the moment—money you're holding for future taxes, stock purchases or other investments, paying bills or any other purpose. Or if you're responsible for funds of churches, fraternal organizations, businesses, estates, or trusts, put that money to work immediately at 5%—with a call!

Just stop in at any of our offices, and arrange for a Teletransfer Savings Account. Or, if you're too busy to come in, just call, and we'll arrange to set up the Account in your name or the name of your firm.

Complete Account information, safely stored in Commercial Federal's giant computer, will always be available to you... and you'll get a receipt for each transaction, plus a quarterly statement showing all transactions.

ADDING TO YOUR ACCOUNT:

Whenever you want to transfer money from your checking account to your Teletransfer Savings Account, you just pick up your phone, call Commercial Federal, and ask for "TELETRANSFER." Give your savings account number and a secret code which will be assigned to you alone. The Teletransfer teller will verify the information through the computer — and as of that moment, the money you're transferring to Commercial Federal will begin earning interest!

IN OMAHA CALL 558-5400 • IN LINCOLN, COLUMBUS, and
NORFOLK, CALL the OPERATOR and ASK FOR ENTERPRISE 1000
• ELSEWHERE . . . CALL 402/558-5400 COLLECT

WITHDRAWING FROM YOUR ACCOUNT:

Suppose you need some of the money from your Teletransfer Account. Just phone the Teletransfer teller—give her your account number and secret code—and tell her how much you want transferred back to your checking account or sent direct to you (minimum $200). Either way, a check is issued and mailed that day.

IT'S SAFE!

Naturally, your savings are insured safe at Commercial Federal. And by using the safeguards of the account number and the secret code when you call—and through our refusal to mail any withdrawal check anywhere except to your bank or to you, at the address previously authorized by you—you're protected.

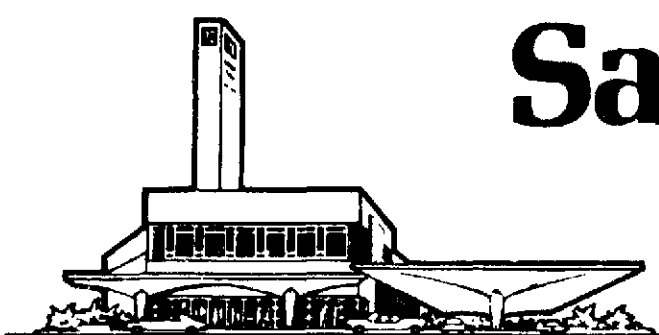

IT'S CONVENIENT... FLEXIBLE!

No trips to the bank or to Commercial Federal. Everything's handled by phone—in minutes. Saves time... saves going out in stormy weather... saves trouble... gets your money working sooner. Teletransfer enables you to earn daily interest on any money in your Teletransfer Savings Account for as short a period as one week!

Don't let a single day go by, with idle money lying in your checking account! Become a Teletransfer Savings Account customer now... and start earning daily interest! Call... write... come in to any of Commercial Federal's offices for complete details... and begin earning "daily rent" on your money immediately!

Sharp Has Hope

Ottawa (AP) — Canadian Foreign Secretary Mitchell Sharp says he is "reasonably optimistic" about the future of the cease-fire in Vietnam despite Canada's announced withdrawal from the observer commission.

Have you considered this sound approach to increased productivity and profits?

Have you ever considered the use of the psychological sound of Muzak to improve your productivity and your return on payroll dollars? What Muzak calls the stimulus progression curve is specially-recorded music subtly interacting with your employees' moods hour by hour. It stimulates them to greater activity during those times when they might slump into boredom, fatigue and melancholy. It helps them think and act more clearly during those times when they tend to become disorganized by stress. Documented, independent research can show you how Muzak has reduced major problems which plague management. Ask about our trial demonstration without obligation.

DKQ knows that getting 5% interest from a tax-free municipal bond is like getting 7 to 10½% from a taxable investment, depending upon your income.

It's not what you make that's important. It's what you get to keep. A 5% municipal bond still yields 5% after federal taxes. To equal this 5% tax-free rate, a savings institution would have to pay you taxable interest of 7.81% if your net taxable income is between $24,000 and $28,000. Add state income tax, and the figure would have to be even higher. Locate your income bracket, in the box below, and see what municipal bonds could do for you.

If you already have an adequate savings program, then tax-free municipal bonds may be the next step for you. High quality municipal bonds have a high degree of safety, because they are backed by the taxing power of the municipality. And they're a worthwhile investment, because they provide municipalities with the money they need for schools, roads, libraries and other community services. Stocks Slump Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reflecting apprehension by investors over the economy, stock market prices continued to decline Monday. Trading volume once again was light as the closing Dow Jones 30 industrial average hit its 30-month low.

The Dow Jones closing average of 30 industrials was down 8.05 at 885.91. Declining issues beat out advances 4 to 1. Volume was an extremely light total of 11.23 million shares.

The Dow industrials closed at its lowest since Dec. 27, 1971, when it was 881.47. Monday was the fifth straight day of market declines. The Dow dropped nearly 37 points last week.

Analysts said the low volume indicated the small investor was remaining out of the market and would not return until there was a clear picture of a solid economy.

"There's little news to support a rally," said Newton Zander of E.F. Hutton & Co. Most of the news continues to be negative.

The Big Board index of some 1,500 common shares ended the day down 5.46 at 54.86. The American Stock Exchange price change index was down 12.22 at 37.77.

The Big Board volume leader was Coastal States, up 1/2 at 8 1/2. It received an unfavorable report on its financial condition.

Other Big Board volume leaders were Arden Realty, down 1/2 at 37.77; Scott Paper, down 1/2 at 37.77; and Gulf Oil, unchanged at 22 1/2.

Bausch & Lomb was down 3 1/2 at 17 1/2 after the Securities and Exchange Commission announced the company and others had been charged with trading on the heavy drop.

Amex declining issues outpaced advances 62 to 25 in a light volume of 2.47 million.

The NASDAQ composite index of the over the counter market was down 1.53 at 100.77.

Union, World-Herald Trade Accusations

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Local 190 of the International Typographical Union and the Omaha World-Herald have accused each other of unfair labor practices.

Most members of the printers union have remained off their jobs since May 4. The newspaper has continued to publish. In charges filed with the Kansas City regional office of the National Labor Relations Board, the union said the World-Herald has paid bonuses to replacements for union members and to union members who stayed at work after May 4.

The newspaper also has offered above-normal wages in attempting to get union members to return to work, according to the charge.

In three charges filed with the NLRB, the World-Herald alleged that Local 190 members have restrained, coerced and threatened physical harm to employees of the newspaper.

On two occasions, union members did that through threatening and interfering with a person entering and leaving the World-Herald and, also by photographing the person, the newspaper said. Each incident involved different employees.

In the third case the coercion took the form of photographing an employee as she came to work and communicating with her husband's employer according to the allegation.

Named in the charges were Wayne R. Crisman, local president and Ronald J. Sasso and Micky J. Fensom, members.

The union also charged that the World-Herald:

—Unlawfully locked out Local 190 members while contract negotiations were pending.

—Refused to give vacation pay earned during 1972 to union members who are taking part in the union's action.

"Refused to bargain collectively" and attempted "to discourage membership in a labor organization."

In other developments, a union spokesman said the union is attempting to prepare a paper that will contain advertising and will be devoted "to getting our story across."

Rex Stoddard, Local 190 vice president, said he doesn't know how many copies will be distributed or whether subsequent issues will be published.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it: AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
